

Get strategic with centralised contract management

Procurement traditionally focused on acquiring products and services for the best price. But today's procurement teams are expected to do more than control expenses. Organisations require procurement to be a strategic value driver, delivering business insights to executives that result in better decisions. As such, managing legal and regulatory exposure, ensuring proper risk management and governance, and providing valuable intelligence to key stakeholders and business sponsors are the purview of modern procurement. However, 53% of organisations lack the systems needed to easily find and manage agreements. By eliminating paper and centralising contract management, the DocuSign Agreement Cloud changes that.

Manage contracts centrally

Gain control and insights into supplier agreements across your organisation by managing them all from one place. Track various stages of contracts and automatically route to the right stakeholders with a single system of record, accelerating timelines and improving user experience.

Minimise risk and ensure process compliance

Identify high-risk and high-value terms, perform accurate spend analysis, understand contract risks and obligations and reduce procurement costs. By integrating DocuSign Agreement Cloud with your preferred procurement ERP system, you can also enhance supplier visibility, monitor risk exposure, identify saving opportunities, and ensure business owners follow the process and fill out forms correctly.

Improve business outcomes

Agreement Cloud lets you index, search for, sort, review and compare contract data. Its AI-driven analytics helps you easily review key clauses to ensure you're getting the most beneficial terms and that negotiated payment terms are being met. These capabilities enable procurement to better identify synergies and source strategic new technologies and vendors, improving the quality of goods and services while maintaining competitive pricing.
